VALENTINE'S DAY

Heart-shaped candies became a Valentine's favorite in the late 1800s. The first "conversation hearts" were created by a Boston pharmacist who used a candy-press machine to stamp romantic sayings onto small shapes. Messages were printed on paper and included phrases such as "Please Be True." Over time, the sayings were shortened to "Be Mine" and "True Love."

RAMADAN
Food for Thought
Sweet drinks like jallab in the Middle East are Ramadan favorites. Made with fruits, rosewater, or milk, they help restore hydration and sugar levels after fasting. Families often prepare them in large batches, adding nuts or seeds for texture and flavor, turning a simple drink into a celebratory ritual.

Fun Fact
In Egypt, the glow of colorful fanous lanterns fills the streets during Ramadan nights. The tradition began more than a thousand years ago when lanterns were used to welcome a visiting leader during the holy month. Today, the fanous has become a lasting symbol of Ramadan across the Arab world. Many families hang them from balconies or windows as the month begins. Some lanterns are made by hand.
